Kaimowitz’s numerous academic honors included being elected to Phi Beta Kappa and winning a Fulbright Scholarship and a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. After teaching Latin for several years at Miami University in Ohio and later at Trinity, he shifted to library work at the New York Public Library’s Spencer Collection of rare books and manuscripts. While in N.Y.C., he earned an M.L.S. from Columbia University. Kaimowitz joined the Watkinson Library as curator in 1977 and continued working with faculty and students until his retirement 32 years later. Kaimowitz also published a translation of The Odes of Horace; his work, labeled “groundbreaking” by publisher Johns Hopkins University Press, won the 2009 Choice Outstanding Academic Title honor.

Kaimowitz is survived by his wife, Llyn; son Simon Kaimowitz; sister Carol Kaimowitz; and brother-in-law and sister-in-law Ralph and Francene Conrad.

The Rev. Ann Charles Miller, 73, of Bloomfield, Connecticut, died on February 1, 2021.

Miller served as Trinity’s chaplain from 1991 to 1995. She earned a B.A. in history from Smith College and worked for a decade in the insurance industry before entering Virginia Theological Seminary. Her career highlights included serving as the Episcopal chaplain at Yale University; as the transition officer for the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut, a role she held for most of her career; and as an assistant rector at St. James’s and St. John’s Episcopal Churches in West Hartford.

Miller is survived by her husband of 24 years, the Rev. Barry Miller; stepsons Andrew Miller and Gregory Miller; and two granddaughters. She was predeceased by brother William Charles.

FORMER TRUSTEES

Eudora L. Richardson, 89, of Washington, D.C., died on January 21, 2021.

Richardson earned an undergraduate degree in American studies from Georgetown University, of which she was a loyal supporter, serving on its board and founding its Richardson American Studies Lecture Series. The philanthropist also served on the Hillsdale Fund board for more than 60 years. Richardson was one of the first two female members of Trinity’s Board of Trustees; she served from 1974–83.

Richardson is survived by her husband, James Lowenstein; children Laurinda Douglas and Price Lowenstein; three grandchildren; and sisters Molly Smith and Margaret White.
